

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

.

•

2911 Barbauld •

 $\begin{array}{ccc} \mathbf{f} & \mathbf{g} & & & \\ & \mathbf{f} & & & \end{array}$ • 1 1 ì

PUIDLE AND AND AND PUIDLE REPORT

Barra ld

"HE MADE THE GREAT WHALE AND THE ELEPHANT."

THE NEW YORK

PUBLIC LIBRARY

18348B

ASTOR, LENOX AND TILDEN FOUNDATIONS B 1939 L

Fondon:

Printed by William Clowes and Sons, Stumford Street.

PREFACE.

Among the number of books composed for the use of children, though there are many, and some on a very rational plan, which unfold the system, and give a summary of the doctrines of religion, it would be difficult to find one calculated to assist them in the devotional part of it, except indeed Dr. Watts's Hymns for Children. These are in pretty general use; and the author is deservedly honoured for the condescension of his Muse, which was very able to take a loftier flight. But it may well be doubted whether poetry ought to be lowered to the capacities of children, or whether they should not rather be kept from reading verse till they are able to relish good verse; for the very essence of poetry is an elevation in thought and style above the common standard; and if it wants this character, it wants all that renders it valuable.

The author of these Hymns has therefore chosen to give them in prose. They are intended to be committed to memory, and recited. And it will probably be found that the measured prose in which such pieces are generally written, is nearly as agreeable to the ear as a more regular rythmus. Many of these Hymns are composed in alternate parts, which will give them something of the spirit of social worship.

The peculiar design of this publication is to impress devotional feelings as early as possible on the infant mind; fully convinced, as the Author is, that they cannot be impressed too soon, and that a child, to feel the full force of the idea of God, ought never to remember the time when he had no such idea—to impress them, by connecting religion with a variety of sensible objects, with all that he sees, all he hears, all that affects his young mind with wonder or delight; and thus, by deep, strong, and permanent associations, to lay the best foundation for practical devotion in future life. For he who has early been accustomed to see the Creator in the visible appearances of all around him, to feel His continual presence, and lean upon His daily protection—though his religious ideas may be mixed with many improprieties, which his correcter reason will refine away—has made large advances towards that habitual piety, without which religion can scarcely regulate the conduct, and will never warm the heart.

A. L. B.

PREFACE TO THE PRESENT EDITION.

In offering this volume to the public, little need be said in addition to the original Preface, in which the Authoress fully explains the character and intention of the work; an effort singularly successful in raising the youthful mind to the praise of God, through the contemplation of His works.

To realise this conception more vividly than mere text can accomplish, has been the aim and intention throughout.

The varied and picturesque descriptions with which the continuous thread of argument is strung, render the task of illustration at once easy and suggestive.

Few works could be found which challenge the pencil and fancy of the artist in a greater degree; and it is hoped the present effort may be deemed worthy of the text.

The blending of the illustrations with the type will be found no unimportant feature; a unity being thereby obtained, which is alike pleasing and less fatiguing both to the mind and eye, a matter of some importance with the young.

LONDON, NOVEMBER, 1863.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

ENGRAVED BY JAMES D. COOPER.

SUBJ	EOT.	artist.		PAGE
"He made the great	Wha	le an	d the	Ele	phan	t"	R. Barnes		Fron	tisp	iece
Flowers and Fruit					••		T. KENNEDY			1	itle
Heading to Hymn I.							R. Barnes		••		1
The Pebbly Brook							E. M. WIMPERIS				2
"I will praise God wi	th m	ıy vo	ice "				R. Barnes				3
"Let Him call me"		••		••			,,				4
Spring Flowers and B	uds						W. S. COLEMAN				5
Primroses, Cowslips,	and	Viole	ets				,,				6
Young Goslings			••	••			,,				6
Hen sitting			••	••	••	••	,,		••		7
Young Lambs	••	••	••		••		R. Barnes	••			7
"Butterflies flutter fro	om b	ush t	to bu	sh"		••	W. S. COLEMAN		••		8
Chesnut Blossom	••		••	••		••	"	••			9
"On every hill we wi	ll sin	g Hi	s pra	ise ''			,,			••	9
Lark rising	••	••		••	••	••	T. KENNEDY	••			10
Shepherd and stray La	amb	••	·	••	••	••	R. Barnes	••	••		11
Group of Sheep	••	••	••	••	••			••		••	12
Mother and Sick Chile	d	••	••	••	••	••		••	••		13
Passion-flower			••	••	••		,,				14
Honeysuckle	••	••	••	••	••		,,	••			15
The Good Shepherd	••				••		. 22	••			16
The Moss Rose (Bear	uty)	••					W. S. COLEMAN	••			17
The Lion (Strength)							R. Barnes	••		: .	18
The Sun (Glory)	••			••			E. M. WIMPERIS				19

	80	BJEC	r.						ARTIST.				PAGE
Group of Flower	8							R.	BARNES				20
"The glorious Su	ın is	set i	n the	wes	t"			E	. M. Wimperi	8			21
Beehives and Wo	odbi	nes						R.	BARNES		••		22
Children asleep					•.				,,				23
Maternal care	••								,				24
Sweetbriar, &c.						••	••	T.	KENNEDY				25
Child awakening		••				••		R.	BARNES				26
"The fields were	brigl	ht w	ith s	ımm	er"			E.	M. WIMPERIS	3			28
Rabbits and Field	Mic	œ ·						T.	KENNEDY	••			29
"The Poppy and	harel	oell g	rew	amor	g th	e wh	eat"		• »				30
In the Coppice	••	••				••		E.	M. WIMPERIS	٠			31
Moonrise			• • •						,,	••			32
Storm									,,				33
Child in Storm						••	••	R.	Barnes				34
Summer shade		••						Ε.	M. WIMPERIS	٠	••		35
Cattle in stream							••	R.	BARNES				36
Ivy border		••	••	••			••		,,	••			37
Acacia		••			••			T.	Kennedy				38
Foot-ball	••	••			••		••	R.	Barnes				38
Fruit border	••	••	••	••		••	••		,,	••	••		39
Apple bough	••			••				T.	Kennedy	••	••		40
Girls at work	••	••		••		••		R.	Barnes	••	••		41
Child listening to	the 1	Lark		••		••	••		,,	••		••	42
The Labourer's C	otta	ge H	ome			••		E.	M. WIMPERIS	••			44
The Reaper	••	••			••			R.	Barnes	••	••		45
Running to meet	Fath	er							,,		••		45
The Family Gathe	ering		••		••	••			,,	••	••		46
The Village	••	••				••	••	E.	M. WIMPERIS		••		47
The Negro					••	••	: .	\mathbf{R}_{ullet}	Barnes	••	••	••	48
The Laplander			••						,,	••			48
The Italian	••	••	••		••				,,	••			49
The Arab		••		••			••		,,				49
Negro Woman an	d Sic	k Cl	hild						,,				50

SU				PAGE
Ivy border							R. Barnes	••			51
The Castaway							,,			••	52
"Take up a handful o	of san	d"	'				,,,				53
The Fir and Willow	••		••				T. KENNEDY			••	54
The Thistle and Malle	ow						,,	••	••		55
The Hop and Oak		••					"				56
The Daisy and Tulip							,,	••	••		57
The Iris, Reed, and H		-flow	ver				"		••		58
The Water-lilies and							"	••			59
The Thorn and Field-							,,				60
The Tropical Forest							"				61
The Rose and Lily							"		••	••	63
The Snowdrop, Primi	rose a	nd (Carna	tion			,,				63
Winter							,,				64
The Breath of Spring							"		••		65
The Beech-trees and I							,,				66
The giant Oak							E. M. WIMPER	ıs			68
Oak bough							R. BARNES		••		69
The Germ of the Oak			••				,,				70
Child in Cradle—Con	volvu	ılus t	orde	er			,,				71
Youth at Study							"				72
Ivy border							,,				73
Twin Oaks							"				74
Release from the Chry	y s alis						T. KENNEDY				7.5
Child and Sapling	. .						R. BARNES				76
Twilight							E. M. WIMPER	ıs			77
"Bending her bright h	orns	like		er b	ow "		,,				78
The Pole Star, and M							,,				79
Jupiter							T. KENNEDY				80
Orion's Belt and Sirius	3						,,				80
Saturn							,,	••			81
The Milky Way							,,	••			81
Moonlight			••				E. M. WIMPER	18	••	••	82

st		PAGE
Winter Scene							E. M. WIMPER	aı			84
"Trees lift up their na	aked	bou	ghs"				T. KENNEDY	••			85
Holly bough							R. Barnes				86
Old Age and Childho	od						"				87
The Cross	••						"				88
Scattered Rose-leaves							T. Kennedy	••			89
The Fallen Trunk					••		,, .	••		••	90
Perishing Insects											91
The stricken Man							R. BARNES	••			92
Group of Flowers							T. KENNEDY				93
Mountain Sunrise							,,				94
Chrysalis, Butterfly,	Ca	terpi	llar,	and	i N	as-					•
turtium	••	••		••		••	,,	••		••	95
Flowers and Insects			••			••	,,	••			96
Rose and Brambles				••			R. Barnes				97
The Rainbow			••				,,				97
Hymning Praise	••						,,				98
Turtle Doves			••				,,				99
The Toad and Henba	ne						,,				99
Finis		••									TOO

HYMN I.

OME, let us praise God, for He is exceeding great; let us bless God, for He is very good.

He made all things; the sun to rule the day, the moon to shine by night.

He made the great whale, and the elephant; and the little worm that crawleth on the ground.

I can think of all His kindness, and my heart shall love Him.

Let Him call me, and I will come unto Him: let Him command, and I will obey Him.

When I am older, I will praise Him better; and I will never forget God, so long as my life remaineth in me.

The young goslings are running upon the green, they are just hatched, their bodies are covered with yellow down; the old ones hiss with anger if any one comes near.

The hen sits on her nest of straw, she watches patiently the full time, then she carefully breaks the shell, and the young chickens come out.

The lambs just dropped are in the field, they totter by the side of their dams, their young limbs can hardly support their weight. If you fall, little lambs, you will not be hurt; there is spread under you a carpet of soft grass; it is spread on purpose to receive you.

The birds can warble and the young lambs can bleat, but we can open our lips in His praise, we can speak of all His goodness.

Therefore we will thank Him for ourselves, and we will thank Him for those that cannot speak.

Trees that blossom and little lambs that skip about, if you could, you would say how good He is; but you are dumb, we will say it for you.

We will not offer you in sacrifice, but we will offer sacrifice for you; on every hill and in every green field, we will offer the sacrifice of thanksgiving, and the incense of praise.

But who is the shepherd's Shepherd? who taketh care for him? who guideth him in the path he should go? and, if he wander, who shall bring him back? God is the shepherd's Shepherd. He is the Shepherd over all; He taketh care for all; the whole earth is His fold; we are all His flock; and every herb, and every green field, is the pasture

But who is the Parent of the mother? who nourisheth her with good things, and watcheth over her with tender love, and remembereth her every moment? Whose arms are about her to guard her from harm? and if she is sick, who shall heal her.

God is the Parent of the mother; He is the Parent of all, for He created all. All the men and all the women, who are alive in the wide world, are His children; He loveth all, He is good to all.

The king governeth his people; he hath a golden crown upon his head, and the royal sceptre is in his hand; he sitteth upon a throne, and sendeth forth his demands; his subjects fear before him: if they do well, he protecteth them from danger; and if they do evil, he punisheth them.

But who is the Sovereign of the king? who commandeth him what he must do? whose hand is reached out to protect him from danger? and if he doeth evil, who shall punish him?

God is the Sovereign of the king; His crown is of rays of light, and His throne is amongst the stars. He is King of kings, and Lord of lords: if He biddeth us live, we live; and if He biddeth us die, we die: His dominion is over all worlds, and the light of His countenance is upon all His works.

God is our Shepherd, therefore we will follow Him; God is our Father, therefore we will love Him; God is our King, therefore we will obey Him.

I will show you what is strong. The lion is strong; when he raiseth up himself from his lair, when he shaketh his mane, when the voice of his roaring is heard, the cattle of the field fly, and the wild beasts of the desert hide themselves, for he is very terrible.

The lion is strong, but He that made the lion is

The sun is glorious, but He that made the sun is more glorious than he. The eye beholdeth Him not, for His brightness is more dazzling than we could bear.

He seeth in all dark places; by night as well as by day; and the light of His countenance is over all His works.

Who is this great Name, and what is He called, that my lips may praise Him?

This great Name is God. He made all things, but He is himself more excellent than all which He hath made: they are beautiful, but He is beauty; they are strong, but He is strength; they are perfect, but He is perfection.

The chickens are gathered under the wing of the hen, and are at rest; the hen herself is at rest also.

The little birds have ceased their warbling, they are asleep on the boughs, each one has his head behind his wing.

There is no murmur of bees around the hive, or among the honeyed woodbines; they have done their work, and lie close in their waxen cells.

The sheep rest upon their soft fleeces,⁷ and their loud bleating is no more heard amongst the hills.

There is no sound of a number of voices, or of children at play, or the trampling of busy feet, and of people hurrying to and fro.

The smith's hammer is not heard upon the anvil; nor the harsh saw of the carpenter.

All men are stretched on their quiet beds; and the child sleeps upon the breast of its mother.

Darkness is spread over the skies, and darkness is upon the ground; every eye is shut and every hand is still. Who taketh care of all people when they are sunk in sleep; when they cannot defend themselves, nor see if danger approacheth?

There is an eye that never sleepeth; there is an eye that seeth in dark night as well as in the bright sunshine.

When there is no light of the sun, nor of the moon; when there is no lamp in the house, nor any little star twinkling through the thick clouds; that eye seeth everywhere, in all places, and watcheth continually over all the families of the earth.

The eye that sleepeth not is God's; His hand is always stretched out over us.

He made sleep to refresh us when we are weary: He made night that we might sleep in quiet. As the mother moveth about the house with her finger on her lips, and stilleth every little noise that her infant be not disturbed,—as she draweth the curtains around its bed, and shutteth out the light from its tender eyes, so God draweth the curtains

Labourers, spent with toil, and young children, and every little humming insect, sleep quietly, for God watcheth over you.

You may sleep, for He never sleeps; you may close your eyes in safety, for His eye is always open to protect you.

When the darkness is passed away, and the beams of the morning sun strike through your eyelids, begin the day with praising God, who hath taken care of you through the night.

Flowers, when you open again, spread your leaves, and smell sweet to His praise.

Birds, when you awake, warble your thanks amongst the green boughs; sing to Him before you sing to your mates.

Let His praise be in our hearts, when we lie down; let His praise be on our lips, when we awake.

j • •

Didst thou hear nothing but the murmur of the brook? no whispers but the whispers of the wind? Return again, child of reason, for there are greater things than these.—God was amongst the trees; His voice sounded in the murmur of the water;

His music warbled in the shade; and didst thou not attend?

I saw the moon rising behind the trees; it was like a lamp of gold. The stars one after another appeared in the clear firmament.

Presently I saw black clouds arise, and roll towards the south; the lightning streamed in thick flashes over the sky; the thunder growled at a distance; it came nearer, and I felt afraid, for it was loud and terrible.

Did thy heart feel no terror, but of the thunderbolt? Was there nothing bright and terrible but the lightning? Return, O child of reason, for there are greater things than these.—God was in the storm, and didst thou not perceive Him? His terrors were abroad, and did not thine heart acknowledge Him?

God is in every place; He speaks in every sound we hear; He is seen in all that our eyes behold; nothing, O child of reason, is without God;—let God therefore be in all thy thoughts.

The shade is pleasant and cool; the branches meet above our heads, and shut out the sun as with a green curtain; the grass is soft to our feet, and a clear brook washes the roots of the trees.

The sloping bank is covered with flowers; let us lie down upon it; let us throw our limbs on the fresh grass and sleep; for all things are still, and we are quite alone.

The cattle can lie down to sleep in the cool shade, but we can do what is better; we can raise our voices to heaven; we can praise the great God

Can we raise our voices up to the high heaven? Can we make Him hear who is above the stars? We need not raise our voices to the stars: for He heareth us when we only whisper: when we breathe out words softly with a low voice. He that filleth the heavens is here also.

May we that are so young speak to Him that always was? May we, that can hardly speak plain, speak to God?

We that are so young are but lately made alive; therefore we should not forget His forming hand who hath made us alive. We that cannot speak plain, should lisp out praises to Him who teacheth us how to speak, and hath opened our dumb lips.

He fashioneth our tender limbs, and causeth them to grow; He maketh us strong, and tall, and nimble.

Every day we are more active than the former day, therefore every day we ought to praise Him better than the former day.

We will think of God when we play, and when we work; when we walk out, and when we come in; when we sleep, and when we wake; His praise shall dwell continually upon our lips.

I Day

~

.

•

HYMN YIII.

SEE where stands the cottage of the labourer covered with warm thatch! The mother is spinning at the door; the young children sport before her on the grass; the elder ones learn to labour, and are obedient; the father worketh to provide them food: either he tilleth the ground, or he gathereth in the corn, or shaketh his ripe apples from the tree. His children run to meet him when he cometh home, and his wife prepareth the wholesome meal.

The father, the mother, and the children make a family; the father is the master thereof. If the family be numerous, and the grounds large, there are servants to help to do the work: all these dwell in one house; they sleep beneath the same roof; they eat the same bread; they kneel down together and praise God every night and every morning with one voice; they are very closely united, and are dearer to each other than any strangers. If one is sick they mourn together; and if one is happy they rejoice together. Many houses are built together; many families live near one another; they meet together on the green, and in pleasant walks, and to buy and sell, and in the house of justice: and the sound of the bell calleth them to the house of God in company. If one is poor, his neighbour helpeth him; if he is sad, he comforteth him. This is a village; see where it stands enclosed in a green shade, and the tall spire peeps above the trees.

If there be very many houses, it is a town, it is governed by a magistrate.

Many towns, and a large extent of country, make a kingdom; it is enclosed by mountains; it is divided by rivers; it is washed by seas; the inhabitants thereof are countrymen; they speak the same language; they make war and peace together; a king is the ruler thereof. Many kingdoms and countries full of people, and islands, and large continents, and different climates, make up this whole world—God governeth it. people swarm upon the face of it like ants upon a hillock; some are black with the hot sun; some cover themselves with furs against the sharp cold; some drink of the fruit of the vine; some the pleasant milk of the cocoa-nut, and others quench their thirst with the running stream.

All are God's family; He knoweth every one of them, as a shepherd knoweth his flock; they pray to Him in different languages, but He understandeth them all;

He heareth them all; He taketh care of all: none are so great that He cannot punish them; none are so mean that He will not protect them.

Negro woman, who sittest pining in captivity,

Monarch, that rulest over a hundred states; whose frown is terrible as death, and whose armies cover the land, boast not thyself as though there were none above thee:—God is above thee; His powerful arm is always over thee; and if thou doest ill, assuredly He will punish thee.

Nations of the earth, fear the Lord; families of men, call upon the name of your God.

Is there any one whom God hath not made? let him not worship Him: is there any one whom He hath not blessed? let him not praise Him.

You cannot count them, they are innumerable; much more the things which God has made.

The daisy enamelleth the meadows, and groweth beneath the foot of the passenger.

The tulip asketh a rich soil, and the careful hand of the gardener.

The snow-drop and the primrose make haste to lift their heads above the ground. When the spring cometh, they say, Here we are. The carnation waiteth for the full strength of the year; and the hardy laurustinus cheereth the winter months.

Every plant produceth its like. An ear of corn will not grow from an acorn; nor will a grapestone produce cherries; but every one springeth from its proper

Who preserveth them alive through the cold winter, when the snow is on the ground, and

Who breathed on them with the breath of spring, and they are covered with verdure, and green leaves

They all speak of Him who made them; they all tell us, He is very good.

We cannot see God, for He is invisible; but we can see His works, and worship His footsteps in the green sod. They that know the most will praise God the best; but which of us can number half His works?

HYMN X.

LOOK at that spreading oak, the pride of the village green: its trunk is massy, its branches are strong. Its roots, like crooked fangs, strike deep into the soil, and support its huge bulk. The birds build among the boughs: the cattle repose beneath its shade: the neighbours form groups beneath the shelter of its green canopy. The old men point it out to their children, but they themselves remember not its growth: generations of men one after another have been born and died, and this son of the forest has remained the same, defying the storms of two hundred winters.

Yet this large tree was once a little acorn; small in size, insignificant in appearance; such as you are now picking up upon the grass beneath it. Such an acorn, whose cup can only contain a drop or two of dew, contained the whole oak. All its massy trunk, all its knotted branches, all its multitude of leaves, were in that acorn; it grew, it spread, it unfolded itself by degrees, it received nourishment from the rain, and the dews, and the well-adapted soil, but it was all there.

The mind of a child is like the acorn; its powers are folded up, they do not yet appear, but they are all there. The memory, the judgment, the invention, the feeling of right and wrong, are all in the mind of a child; of a little infant just born; but they are not expanded, you cannot perceive them.

Think of the wisest man you ever knew or heard of; think of the greatest man; think of the most learned man, who speaks a number of languages and can find out hidden things; think of a man who stands like that tree, sheltering and protecting a number of his fellow men, and then say to yourself, the mind of that man was once like mine, his thoughts were childish like my thoughts, nay, he was like the babe just born, which knows nothing, remembers nothing, which cannot distinguish good from evil, nor truth from falsehood.

If you had only seen an acorn, you could never guess at the form and size of an oak; if you had never conversed with a wise man, you could form no idea of him from the mute and helpless infant.

Instruction is the food of the mind; it is like the dew and the rain and the rich soil.

As the soil and the rain and the dew cause the tree to swell and put forth its tender shoots, so do books and study and discourse feed the mind, and make it unfold its hidden powers.

Reverence therefore your own mind; receive the nurture of instruction, that the man within you may grow and flourish. You cannot guess how excellent he may become.

It was long before this oak showed its greatness; year after year passed away, and it had only shot a little way above the ground, a child might have plucked it up with his little hands; it was long before any one called it a tree; it is long before the child becomes a man.

The acorn might have perished in the ground, the young tree might have been shorn of its graceful boughs, the twig might have bent, and the tree would have been crooked, but if it grew at all, it could have been nothing but an oak, it would not have been grass or flowers, which live their season and then perish from the face of the earth.

The child may be a foolish man, he may be a wicked man, but he must be a man; his nature is not that of any inferior creature, his soul is not akin to the beasts that perish.

O cherish then this precious mind, feed it with truth, nourish it with knowledge; it comes from God, it is made in His image: the oak will last for centuries, but the mind of man is made for immortality.

Respect in the infant the future man. Destroy not in man the rudiments of an angel.

fade away from the western sky, and the shades of evening fall fast around me.

Deeper and deeper they stretch over the plain; I look at the grass, it is no longer green; the flowers are no more tinted with various hues; the houses, the trees, the cattle, are all lost in the distance. The dark curtain of night is let down over the works of God; they are blotted out from the view as if they were no longer there.

Child of little observation, canst thou see nothing because thou canst not see grass and flowers, trees and cattle? Lift up thine eyes from the ground shaded with darkness, to the heavens that are stretched over thy head; see how the stars one by one appear and light up the vast concave. There is the moon bending her bright horns like a silver bow, and shedding her mild light, like liquid silver, over the blue firmament. There is Venus, the evening and morning star; and the Pleiades, and the Bear that never sets, and the Pole star that guides the mariner over the deep.

Now the mantle of darkness is over the earth; the last little gleam of twilight is faded away; the lights are extinguished in the cottage windows, but the firmament burns with innumerable fires; every little star twinkles in its place. If you begin to count them they are more than you can number; they are like the sands on the sea shore. The telescope shows you far more, and there are thousands and ten thousands of stars which no telescope has ever reached.

Now Orion heaves his bright shoulder above the horizon, and Sirius, the Dog-star, follows him the brightest of the train.

Look at the milky way, it is a field of brightness; its pale light is composed of myriads of burning suns.

All these are God's families. He gave the sun to shine with a ray of His own glory; He marks the path of the planets, He guides their wanderings through the sky, and traces out their orbit with the finger of His power.

If you were to travel as swift as an arrow from a bow, and to travel on further and further still for millions of years, you would not be out of the creation of God.

New suns in the depth of space would still be burning round you, and other planets fulfilling their appointed course.

Lift up thine eyes, child of earth, for God has given thee a glimpse of heaven. The light of one sun is withdrawn that thou mayest see ten thousand. Darkness is spread over the earth that thou mayest behold, at a distance, the regions of eternal day.

This earth has a variety of inhabitants; the sea, the air, the surface of the ground, swarm with creatures of different natures, sizes, and powers; to know a very little of them is to be wise among the sons of men. What then, thinkest thou, are the various forms and natures and senses and occupations of the peopled uni-

Who can tell the birth and generations of so many worlds? who can relate their histories? who can describe their inhabitants?

Canst thou measure infinity with a line? canst thou grasp the circle of infinite space.

Yet all these depend upon God, they hang upon Him as a child upon the breast of its mother; He tempereth the heat to the inhabitant of Mercury; He provideth resources against the cold in the frozen orb of Saturn. Doubt not that He provideth for all beings that He has made.

Look at the moon when it walketh in brightness; gaze at the stars when they are marshalled in the firmament, and adore the Maker of so many worlds.

It is now Winter, dead Winter. Desolation and silence reign in the fields, no singing of birds is heard, no humming of insects. The streams murmur no longer; they are locked up in frost.

The trees lift their naked boughs like withered arms into the bleak sky, the green sap no longer rises in their veins; the flowers and the sweet-smelling shrubs are decayed to their roots.

The sun himself looks cold and cheerless; he gives light only enough to show the universal desolation.

Nature, child of God, mourns for her children. A little while ago and she rejoiced in her offspring: the rose spread its perfume upon the gale; the vine gave its fruit; her children were springing and blooming around her, on every lawn and every green bank.

O Nature, beautiful Nature, beloved child of God, why dost thou sit mourning and desolate? Has thy Father forsaken thee? has He left thee to perish? Art thou no longer the object of His care?

He has not forsaken thee, O Nature? thou art His beloved child, the eternal image of His perfections: His own beauty is spread over thee, the light of His countenance is shed upon thee. Thy children shall live again, they shall spring up and bloom around thee; the rose shall again breathe its sweetness on the soft air, and from the bosom of the ground verdure shall spring forth.

And dost thou not mourn, O Nature, for thy human births; for thy sons and thy daughters that sleep under the sod; and shall not they also revive? Shall the rose and the myrtle bloom anew, and shall man perish? Shall goodness sleep in the ground, and the light of wisdom be quenched in the dust, and shall tears be shed over them in vain?

They also shall live; their winter shall pass away; they shall bloom again. The tears of thy children shall be dried up when the eternal year proceeds. O come that eternal year!

I have seen a man in the pride of his strength; his cheeks glowed with beauty; his limbs were full of activity; he leaped; he walked; he ran; he rejoiced in that he was more excellent than those—I returned, he lay stiff and cold on the bare ground; his feet could no longer move, nor his hands stretch themselves out; his life was departed from him; and therefore do I weep because Death is in the world; the spoiler is among the works of God: all that is made must be destroyed; all that is born must die: let me alone, for I will weep yet longer.

I have seen the insect, being come to its full size, languish and refuse to eat: it spun itself a tomb, and was shrouded in the silken cone; it lay without feet, or shape, or power to move. I looked again, it had burst its tomb: it was full of life, and sailed on coloured wings through the soft air; it rejoiced in its new being.

Thus shall it be with thee, O man! and so shall thy life be renewed.

Beauty shall spring up out of ashes; and life out of the dust.

A little while thou shalt lie in the ground, as the seed lieth in the bosom of the earth; but thou shalt be raised again; and if thou art good thou shalt never die any more.

Who is He that cometh to burst open the prison doors of the tomb, to bid the dead awake, and to gather His redeemed from the four winds of heaven?

He descendeth on a fiery cloud; the sound of a trumpet goeth before Him; thousands of angels are on His right hand.

It is Jesus, the Son of God; the Saviour of men; the friend of the good.

He cometh in the glory of His Father; He hath received power from on high.

Mourn not, therefore, child of mortality;—for the spoiler, the cruel spoiler, that laid waste the works of God is subdued; Jesus hath conquered death: child of immortality! mourn no longer.

HYMN XV.

The rose

is sweet, but it is surrounded with thorns; the lily of the valley is fragrant, but it springeth up amongst the brambles.
The spring is pleasant, but it is soon past: the summer is bright, but the winter destroyeth the beauty thereof.

The rainbow is very glorious, but it soon vanisheth away: life is good, but it is quickly swallowed up in death.

There is a land where the roses are without thorns, where the flowers are not mixed with brambles.

In that land there is eternal spring, and light without any cloud.

The tree of life groweth in the midst thereof; rivers of pleasures are there, and flowers that never fade.

Myriads of happy spirits are there, and surround the throne of God with a perpetual hymn.

The angels with their golden harps sing praises continually, and the cherubim fly on wings of fire.

This country is Heaven: it is the country of those that are good; and nothing that is wicked must enter there.

This earth is pleasant, for it is God's earth, and it is filled with many delightful things.

But that country is far better; there we shall not grieve any more, nor be sick any more, nor do wrong any more; there the cold of winter shall not wither us, nor the heats of summer scorch us.

In that country there are no wars nor quarrels, but all love one another with dear love.

There we shall meet all good men, whom we read of in holy books. There we shall see Abraham, the called of God, the father of the faithful; and Moses, after his long wanderings in the Arabian desert; and Elijah, the prophet of God; and Daniel, who escaped from the lions' den; and there the son of Jesse, the shepherd king, the sweet singer of Israel. They loved God on earth; they praised Him on earth; but in that country they will praise Him better and love Him more.

There we shall see Jesus, who is gone before us to that happy place; and there we shall behold the glory of the High God. We cannot see Him here, but we will love Him here; we must be now on earth, but we will often think on Heaven.

That happy land is our home; we are to be here but for a little while, and there for ever, even for ages of eternal years.

